1. Anonymous, ' The Seafarer '. This 124-line poem is often considered an elegy, since it appears to be spoken by an old sailor looking back on his life and preparing for death. He discusses the solitariness of a life on the waves, the cold, the danger, and the hardships. As such, the poem captures the bewitching fascination the sea holds for us, but also its darker, more unpredictable side.

Sea Fever. By John Masefield. I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky, And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by, And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking, And a gray mist on the sea's face, and a gray dawn breaking. Classic Poems About Sailors and the Sea - ThoughtCo

Those stars that sailors follow Guiding less the sea to swallow
And the night seas black as tar
Beyond the wave a land afar Halyards taught, blocks in tallow
Breezes fresh and salt swallow
Timbers creak, white horses foam Callused hands and oceans comb
And the stars pull them forth
South, east, west and north Cabin boy or salty jack
Afore the mast, bare their back
Seas of glass or howling gales
Stands his watch what ever ails
For them the ocean a magic place
For every dawn a changing face ...

Sea Love Poems - Love Poems and Poets

The shape poem below opens itself up to an array of beach-themed imagery. The obvious choice would be a seagull, but students can also choose something like the shape of a wave. Broad topics like this leave plenty of room for artistic inspiration. The seagulls squawk noisily in the breeze.

Two white angels of the sea, Guiding wave-worn wanderers home; Sentinels of hope they be,
Drenched with sleet, and dashed with foam, Standing there in loneliness, Fireside joys for men to keep;
Through the midnight slumberless That the quiet shore may sleep. Two bright eyes awake all night
To the fierce moods of the sea; Eyes that only close when light
